Myth buster: A tutor checks each piece of work before you submit it to be marked.

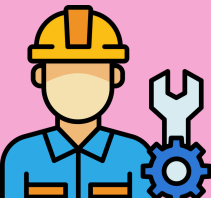

False!

University is a more independent learning experience, so you'll need to take more responsibility for your own learning
However, there's lots of support available if you find this trick!

WORLD OF WORK

The labour market in West Yorkshire is fairly stable, though it isn't growing quickly. About 72% of working-age people are in work, and unemployment sits slightly above the national average at around 4.8%. There are slightly fewer jobs per person than the UK average, and while wages are rising, inflation means pay isn't necessarily going further. Many people have higher-level qualifications, but some still have few or no formal qualifications. Around one in five workers are in insecure or unstable jobs, especially younger people and minority groups. Employment is mostly in skilled roles, but certain areas, like Bradford, face slower hiring and more challenges. Students should make the most of the support available through the Aspiration Team, as we can help them develop skills, explore opportunities, and get prepared for the world of work.

Work Experience Opportunities

Thinking about applying for an apprenticeship or already started the process? This interactive session is designed to help women across the UK build confidence, gain clarity, and get practical support with applications. You'll hear from inspiring female professionals and learn how to make your application stand out – from writing strong answers to performing well in assessments. It's also a great chance to ask questions, overcome common challenges, and connect with a supportive community of future female professionals.

LOCAL OPPORTUNITIES

Even if specific jobs aren't easy to find, there are ways to stay proactive. Set up alerts on job boards, visit local businesses in person, and consider volunteering to gain experience. Recruitment agencies like Reed and Stafflex often have student-friendly roles. The Aspiration Team can guide you with CVs, applications, and interview skills so you're ready when opportunities arise.

It's important to regularly check for job opportunities that fit your situation and stage of life. As a student, look for roles that match your age, availability, and skills – such as part-time work, weekend shifts, or holiday jobs. Checking frequently means you won't miss new positions, and it gives you the chance to apply early, increasing your chances of success. Staying proactive now helps you gain experience, build your CV, and prepare for the world of work.

SEND SUPPORT

Personal Statement feedback service is available at LTU. Send them your personal statement and their School and College Engagement team will provide personalised feedback before you submit your application.

The Healthy Working Life programme in West Yorkshire helps people with health conditions, disabilities, or mental health challenges prepare for work. It offers personalised support, skills training, and interview guidance to help students and young people access suitable job opportunities. ## University of the Week

Career of the Week

Healthcare support workers assist nurses and other medical staff by helping care for patients, including supporting mobility, personal care, and basic nursing tasks. In West Yorkshire, the average salary is around £30,812 per year. There are no strict entry requirements, though employers often expect good literacy and numeracy skills, and GCSEs in English and Maths can be helpful. Many start through on-the-job training or vocational qualifications such as a BTEC or NVQ, and some roles are available part-time or as work experience, making it a practical option for students. This hands-on role offers real responsibility and excellent opportunities to progress within the healthcare sector.
